from the event director

We're back! And we are thrilled that you are here tonight.

Thank you for joining us for the return of SAVOR: An American Craft Beer & Food Experience. After a two-year hiatus, we are thankful for so much.

This year's list of participating breweries is outstanding, with 110 small and independent craft brewers serving a diverse range of more than 225 beers, poured by the visionaries behind the brands.

Participating breweries represent 36 states and Washington, D.C., providing a taste of craft brewing innovation from around the nation, right here in your backyard.

After 10 years of hosting the event at the National Building Museum plus a two-year break from in-person events, we are excited about our move to The Anthem. We hope to make this our new home for years to come and look forward to your feedback.

One thing every brewery here has in common is that they are true independent craft brewers. We know that beer lovers like you want to support independent companies. That's why the Brewers Association introduced the independent craft brewer seal that you see featured on this page and around the venue tonight. When you seek the seal, you know you're supporting small and independent craft brewers.

A hallmark of SAVOR is that each brewery is represented in person by its brewers and/or brewery owners. Very few beer events offer this kind of intimate access. I encourage you to strike up conversations with the people and personalities behind the beers you're sampling tonight.

The pairings and menu items are again expertly created by our own Brewers Association executive chef Adam Dulye and his talented team of award-winning chefs. The pairings are designed to showcase the interplay between fine food and craft beer. In keeping with SAVOR's ethos, the menu features mostly organic ingredients from local producers.

Thank you for your support of indie breweries. All of us at the Brewers Association raise a toast to you for joining us at this year's SAVOR.

Cheersl

SAVOR Commemorative Beer

TWO ROADS TABLE BEER

Perhaps the OG beer style for food pairing, Two Roads' Table Beer is brewed with Connecticut-grown malt and hops. The "secret" ingredient is a unique strain of yeast captured on the brewery's property, giving the beer a distinctive peppery, tropical fruit edge. Perfect at any table, this commemorative beer is a parting gift to help you remember this special evening of beer and food perfection.
